of thirty-eight years. He was a member of the Texas Legislature in 1861, and, although a Union man, he is said to have drawn pay as a member after the secession of the State. He spent a portion of his time in the North during the war, and we are assured that he made speeches for the Copperhead Democracy in Ohio and Indiana during the presidential election of 1864. He was a school-mate, or some other kind of a mate, of President those of its citizens who favored the election of Henry Clay in 1844 shall be a majority. We have before us many Norton, taken from his paper. He ridicules the idea of attempting any co-operation between Independents and Republicans, and battles for exclusiveness on the part of the "Spartan band of Republicans." He allowed the Spartan band to take care of itself while he was distributing the post-offices under Rutherford the Mild. He has better words for the Spartan band than he has for Northern Republicans, as is evidenced by the following from his paper:

Timothy O. Howe, of Wisconsin, the new Post-master-General, is a miscrable old political fessil. He has long been known as a Stalwart, and advoeated a third term for Grant.

Wherefore, in consideration of the premises, those Texas Republicans who are not Spartans and the anti-Bourbon Democrats, Greenbackers, and Independents of that State are desirous that A. B. Norton shall not longer represent the Federal Government in Northern Texas. We hope he may fare better in some other place. Of course he was not appointed to do political work, and nobody wants him to do any. But he is doing solitical work of the very worst kind. He is doing all he can against a union of Riberal and progressive men. He is more medul to the fourbons of Texas as an official under the Federal Government than any Bourison leader in the State. There is a chance for electing some anti-Bourbon members of Congress from Texas this year, and many hope for the sunce of an Independent State ticket. Fint Votes.

Yesterday we published an article from Entered at the post-office at Washington, D. C., as the Troy (Ala.) Inquirer in which that most veracious Bourbon journal demands a reduction of the representation of the black counties in the next Democratic State convention, on the ground that the Democratic votes counted were greatly in excess of the Democratic votes cast. The editor thought it unfair that, in making up the apportionment of delegates to a party convention in the black counties, where the Democrats manufactured false maiorities, the flat votes should be reckoned. He favored their being counted at the elections, but not in figuring how many delegates the counties should have in a Democratic convention. This is unfair. If the flat voting saves Alabama to the Bourbons, then the manufacturers of the flat votes are surely entitled to their share of the plunder so secured.

The Montgomery Advertiser, another Bourbon journal, published by the Bourbon secretary of state, says of the confession of his more indiscreet neighbor:

We respectfully submit that the allegations in the article from the Inquirer are unfounded, unfortunate, and uncalled for.

And again the Advertiser says: The figures of the August and November elections show beyond the peradventure of a doubt that if there was froud in the black counties there was

In Texas.

In Texas.

There is in the Northern District of Texas a marshal named A. B. Norton. He voted for Henry Clay in 1844, and made a vow that he would not have his hair cut until that statesman should be made President. He has kept his vow, and wears long gray hair of the growth of thirty-eight years. He was a member of the Texas a marshal named a long gray hair of the growth of thirty-eight years. and Indiana during the presidential election of 1864. He was a school-mate, or some other kind of a mate, of President Hayes, and was by him made marshal. He is credited with having had the sway as to Federal appointments under Hayes in the 109 counties in his balliwick, and the many Democratic postmasters there attest the liberality with which he acted. Mr. Norton publishes a paper in Dallas, Texas, in which he illustrates the bigotry and intolerance of a Bourbon Republican. He isunable to comprehend that a sleader minority in Texas can never lift that State out of the political mire, even if some of its members hold lucrative Federal offices. He snaps and snarls against the thought of organizing an anti-Bourbon party with any but old-line Republicans in it, and would probably be glad to confine it to old-line Whigs. Mr. Norton is a forsial. He has come down to us from a former generation. It is of course desirable to know what the formations of his period were, but it is not essential that the future political and material development of Texas shall await the time when those of its citizens who favored the clection of Henry Clay in 1844 shall be a language average met to doubt the wisting having known that delectable gentleman long council to be adectable gentleman long council to he be always in this thing, having known that delectable gentleman long council to he be able to recogrize him in any company, modeds bow well him to may be disguised. A Volunteer Defense. To the Editor of The Recuntions:
The acumen of The Republican under its present auspices is the subject of approving commen specimens of the Bourbonism of Marshal from friend and foe; but permit me to say that it has not displayed its usual perspicacity in its commentary on the card of Mesers. McCardle and Aydelotte, which it printed yesterday. These gentiomen were in no sense "projectors" of the American Register, nor were they in the smallest degree "associates" of Judge Bartley in its mandegree "associates" of Judge Barley in the smallest degree "associates" of Judge Barley in its management. They were simply bired, like the present writer, by the worthy Judge to do so much work for him at a weekly stipend or so many dollars. Having "bettered himself," as he considers, he parted with them, as previously with the undersigned. If, in his relations with the rest of his former attaches, he acted in as gentlemanly, contrious, and hosocrable a manner as he did toward myself it is hard to conseive a worthy motive for the end just referred to. Lat "the Reputality as thussands of readers know, too, that the Register, "hourhout all is, hat least in homest, earnest hands. The patricite purposes and high sime of Judge Barley are beyond assault. He is spending large senus of money and the least years of a long and honorable life in an attempt to establish an organ of the principles in which he believes. The worst error he has yet fallen into would appear from yesterday's effection to have been in the selection of his workmen. In justice to a gentleman whose friends may notice for him slurs beneath his regard I trust you will give this insertion.

The Washington correspondent of the Providence Journal relates the following: "During the recent visit of Occar Wilde to Washington the Pest recent visit of Occar Wilde to Washington the Post published a cartoon on the usshede—a picture of a bathoon with an appie in hand, and just below it a very good likeness of Mr. Wilde, with a lify in his hand. Mr. Wilde pretended to be very indignant at this supposed insult, and said to Colonel Rocasie, prontetor of the Arimgton, that he did not think such treatment either fair or decent. Mr. Recesse smilled at this remark, and said to the poet that he was surprised at this stemens, has much as he had seen on his (Wilde a) table the day seloce the Post appeared with the aliceed offensive article a proof of the cartoon, and had been told by Mr. D'Oyl Carte that he had paid $50.00 as the cartoon inverted in the Post as an advertisement. Mr. Wilde had nothing to say.

Dreadful Disappolating.
A professional gambler inveigled an honest old farmer, from down in Malite, into playing a game of power. Mr. Morgan offered and advocated an amelid-ment providing a messenger for each Senator who is not the chairman of a committee. He said by reason of the enerous character of their duties many Senators were literally working themselves to death—their labors being from twenty-five to thirty times as great as those devolved upon mem-bers of the House. He thought the resolution introduced by Mr. Brown for a clerk to every Sena tor not already supplied with one as a commit chairman ought to be passed. After discussion participated in by Messrs, Van Wyck, Morr Teller, Rrown, Vest, Allison, Butler, Pla and Call, the amendment of Mr. Morgan was pened—ayes 10, noes 35—and the resolution, modified on motion of Mr. Platt, was passed

The Sonate then, at two o'clock, took up and temporarily passed over the regular order the anti-polygany bill, and Mr. Cell, on leave, addressed the Senate in support of his proposed amendment to the penaton arream resolution, declaring in favor of penatons to the survivors of Indian wars prior to 18th. He said this every argument in favor of the granting and continuance of penatons to soldlers of the late war applies with equal force in behalf of the disabled of the Mexican and Indian war.

Mr. Milier, of California, gave notice of his in-tention to move to take up the bili restricting Chi-nese immigration as soon as the polygony bill is disposed of.

Education In Ontario.

The following, clipped from the 8t. Thomas (Ont.) Evening Journal of the 7th Instant, will be read with satisfaction by the many friends of Dr. Phillip Carroll in this city: " No. 14, the December issue from the census of the United States, on com-merce, manufactures, &c., of the consular districts, is just received, and in point of excellence is ahead of cur Canadian blue-books. One of the best written and most interesting papers in the report is that of Dr. Phillip Carroll, of St. Thomas, on "Education in the Province of Ontario," The whole system is gone over in a pitty and readable style, and St. Thomas educational institutions are described and praised at length, Arms College and the Collegiate Institute particularly. St. Thomas has reason to be congratulated on baving such an efficient and pleasant representative of the United Etates Government in charge of affairs here. Ho certainly is capable of a much more important charge, and his merits will doubtless be rewarded, but when that time comes this city will be sorry to loss Dr. Carroll." of our Canadian blue-books.
